(QUARTERLY)

Issue #8 Press Release

Sliced Quarterly #8 is now available to read and download for free at www.slicedquarterly.co.uk

All of our previous issues and specials are there to be enjoyed too!

Sliced Quarterly is an experimental comic anthology. We give a home to stories that want to push the boundaries of the comic book narrative. We publish 'slice of life' stories told in extraordinary ways.

Issue #8 of Sliced Quarterly is continuing to showcase unique comics from fresh and distinct voices in the small press scene, not just in the UK, but from around the world.

This collection contains: A meta-comic about being in a comic, woes of a sales-person, a haunting Indian ritual, negative self-talk, a failing everyday hero, a chilling parable and the oddest call centre in existence. We also have the second part of our serialised comic 'Farquhar'.

Our talented contributors: Daniel Ableev, Pablo Iten, Aimeé de Jongh, Frits Jonker, Tom Abbosh, Chris Dean, Steve Tanner, Alex Thompson, Tim West, David Thomas, Jay Martin, Jim Lavery, Aljoša Tomić, Scott Melrose, Dave Snell, Adam Falp and Tara Lucy

The 'Small press preview' continues with a look at the wonderful 'Brain Shoodles', by Emily B. Owen.

This completes our second publishing cycle and we will now look to making our second print collection, which will hit Kickstarter in the next few months.

Our first collected volume is now available to buy in print from our website -

We operate an open submissions policy going forward. Guidelines are on our website -

Ken Reynolds currently lives and works in Ipswich along with his lovely (tolerant) wife and beautiful daughter.

He has lettered for many independent publishers and creators, including upcoming work for Grayhaven Comics, Insane Comics & Arcana. He was proud to be part of the lettering team that completed the 750+ page epic that is 'The Explorers' Guild' by Jon Baird, Kevin Costner and Rick Ross. He also writes the Kickstarter funded comic 'Cognition', a supernatural noir adventure story.
